Some good natured banter was exchanged and one of the boys in King's party threw a snow ball which struck Davidson. He drew a revolver and fired, wounding King, who fell to the ground. NEWSY NOTES AND COMMENT

By Peter M. Herold.

Here we are again. I like to communicate with Dispatch readers, and embrace this opportunity of doing so. This being Lent in the church calendars, the Washingtonville people will likely get weekly visits from David Cain with "fresh fish." Stetson's Uncle Tom's Cabin took the baled hay out of our opera house and showed Monday night.
Rev. James Starrett, who preached in the Carrollton M. E. Church in 1888-90, died in California last week. The family moved there from Oberlin last spring.
Coasting and redbirds on the shady-side, and marbles, hopscotch and robins on the sunny-side of the same street are some of the sights in this village. Ice cream and oysters at the same corner.
The Carrollton merchants, 23 in number, have formed an organization. They say that "where two or more persons agree upon any one thing they form a union."
March 17 will be observed in the Disciple church of this place by the traditional "Lenten Supper" in the basement. "St. Patrick was a better man than the 4th of July."
George Williams of the Carrollton pottery spent Sunday with his parents in Washingtonville. The Standard says that "Fred is about to take unto himself a wife."
The Alliance Review states that John Rinehart of the McCaskey Register Co. has bought a farm near Carrollton and is moving his family upon it. Another case of "back to the soil."
A little over a year ago, Carroll county people sent relief to the "Carroll County Relief Society," who are now buying large quantities of shoes and sending them to friends and relatives in Austria, where shoes are selling at $25 the pair.
Lanana Ferrall of Grand Canyon, Arizona, whose wife is postmistress here, having just been married, mother while on his way to Washington to secure a p. m. for himself.
I am glad that the mad dog scare at Millville has subsided, for I don't want to be bitten by a dog whether he be made or not. I am usually in favor of the mad dog in a fight, until he bites me, then I feel like loosening his slats with a pair of hob-nailed shoes. Let William Allen Roller take St. Paul's advice and "beware of dogs" or in the language of Sam Culp and D. R. Lehman, "gabc oich noch das hant."
The Alliance farmers are now hauling home tons upon tons of so-called "commercial fertilizer." They appear to think that nothing will produce good crops unless it smells bad enough to create cholera or sink a dog off a gut-wagon.
The Alliance members who came here from Salem a year or more ago and bought the Colonial hotel, is arranging the large dining hall for a department store and clothing. This makes the fourth clothing store in this village.
Liquor county has at last secured a liquor license board. Saloons will be opened in Malvern and Sherodsville. The W. C. T. U. talk of taking out the license in all one-saloon towns and sell soft drinks and buttermilk, as the law does not require that whiskey and beer shall be sold.
Perdew is the choice of organized labor for congressman. But there are too many republican politicians in the district to "stand pat" for Tetlow. H. R. Kemmer, editor of the Free-Press-Standard, is a candidate for the third term as representative for the "Little Carroll" in the Ohio legislature.
The wool growers of Carroll now claim to get the highest price ever paid for wool—not having to compete with Washingtonville where they were moved here and repaired it would be hailed with delight.
It is reported here that Nathan Craft of Washingtonville was unfortunate in his purchase of a second-hand benzine buggy, that he was assisted by Abe Lincoln Carnes and J. M. Davis in towing it home from Millville. How about it?
Here is wishing Miss Rowena Eyster and Mr. Earl Neuse a happy voyage over the tempestuous sea of matrimony. May there be no submarine sink their happy ship, and may their first heir be called Pete.
If Master Dickie DeJene took his little auto with him to New Castle he would enjoy the trip to the limit. His grandfather took the rest.
C. E. Mills, a newly married lawyer from Gambuttown, Tuscarawas county, has opened a law shop here. After while he will learn that Daniel Webster couldn't extract a living out of the law business in Carroll county.
A car load of book beer was put on tap in Canton last Saturday and it required four passenger coaches to convey the customers from here.

W. F. Brown, of Beaver Falls, chief mail clerk on the Ft. Wayne railroad, spent last week with his parents near Delroy, where his brother John is postmaster.
J. L. Buchanan, who gave an interesting talk to the grangers at Columbiana last year, is a resident of Leavittsville, this county, Sherodsville R. D. His farm and its buildings show that he practices what he preaches, and also knows how to farm.
Wm. Jennings Bryan Gordon, grandson of Robert Holland who once operated the Co-op store in Washingtonville, is pressman in the Carrollton Standard printing office. That of office employs enough help to get out a daily paper.
The appointment of an unnaturalized citizen of Washingtonville to a $100 a month job at Columbus ought to strengthen Gov. Willis' charge for reelection. But said appointee will have retired before the November election. He has frequently held two petty "offices of honor and trust" at the same time, "tot skule," etc. And is possessed of much sticktoitiveness. Besides, he is related to Congressman Tetlow, Sheriff Dalrymple and lawyer Tetlow. Honors are easy in that deck of cards.
Centralized schools do not take well in Carroll county. Bad roads where not paved, risking children in charge of unscrupulous drivers and other valid excuses are offered.
Carrollton's public school building is fully as large as two of the Washingtonville buildings, but does not present as good an external appearance. The building here is built and surfaced with ordinary paving bricks; has no bell tower, no auditorium and the pupils get no better training. In fact the pupils here are not encouraged to read their books; hence our boys do not study wireless telegraphy, or mechanics. I have a sort of father care over the Washingtonville pupils and am proud over much of their work and outcome. Here's hoping for a good commencement.
When regaling my corn-cob pipe I fancy I see Nick Stempfl driving to town with a week's supply of fresh butter and eggs.... I look through the Dispatch each week for familiar names, and was pleased to see the picture of the newly built Disciple Church at Carrollton. That church here is growing rapidly in interest and membership.... I trust that my old friend, Rev. James Herbert, of Greenford is still enjoying this world with bright prospects of the next. I would be pleased to get a good shave by his big son Cost.... But I haven't time now.

PETER M. HEROLD.

Carrollton, Ohio.

Brown, when members of the Perry grange and the Perry grange, who are now buying large quantities of shoes and sending them to friends and relatives in Austria, where shoes are selling at $25 the pair.
Lanana Ferrall of Grand Canyon, Arizona, whose wife is postmistress here, having just been married, mother while on his way to Washington to secure a p. m. for himself.

The murders, looting and burning of the town at Columbiana, N. M., by a band of Villistas shows a mighty lack of preparedness on the part of the army stationed along the border, where they were supposed to look out for just such emergencies.
